Yesterday.—For several days past this church had been making preparations to celebrate in a becomming manner, the eventful year of the nation's history; and right grandly did they succeed as the services of yesterday abundantly proved.
We give below a brief report of the exercises for the benefit of our many readers who did not secure an entrance to the over-crowded church and Sunday School.
The decorations were quite elaborate, and as beautiful as elaborate. On the wall just back of the pulpit Mr. Zeveley

ABMER O'NEAL.—The Wheeling papers had something to say a few days since about the veteran Captain Abner O'Neal, to which we add interesting facts. Captain O'Neal has been steamboating for 48 years witout intermission. 28 of these years being passed in the packet trade between Wheeling and Stentisch with the packet trade between the packet tra and understood by every one of the large audience present.

The Sunday school of this church is one of its leading features and certainly is a very bee-hive of industry and work. When it undertakes such a celebration as that of yesterday it seems to feel in duty bound to throw so much life into it as to make failure an impossibility, and to demonstrate to the community that it needs enlarged quarters. So was it yesterday, for exarcely more than one half of the friends who desired to attend, obtained admittance, there being over nine hundred crowded into the process.

of the friends who desired to attend, obtained admittance, there being over nine hundred crowded into the rooms.

The singing of the school was fully up to its natual standard, though the tunes yeaterday were not those which children are accustomed to sing. "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne" was sung to three different tunes, the changes being made without the least jar or confusion. Mrs. Geo. T. Zimmer presided at the organ, and much of the accuracy and spirit of and much of the accuracy and spirit

SHOP LIFTING.—On Saturday morning Mr. Adler, of the firm of Kline & Adler, after setting out the "dummies" belonging to the store, retired to the back part of the room. A young man who came along about this time setized a pair of pants from a "dummy," and rushed down an adjoining alley. He was seen by a newsboy, who yelled "stop thief!" at the top of his lungs, causing Mr. Adler to inspect his own property and realize that he had been robbed. He gave chase, and the thief in his hurry to get out of the way dropped the pants, and Mr. Adler returned them to their place in front of the store. CAPT. ANSHUTZ'S NEW BOAT .- The W CAPT. The speakers were Judges Cochran and Crammer of this city and Rev. Dr. Conrad of Philadelphia, each taking for his theme some feature of the great exposition. We cannot give space this morning to even a synopsis of these addresses. Suffice it to say the reporter never heard better Sunday School addresses than those delivered at the English Lutheran Sunday School yesterday. The fact that hundreds of people stood for two mortal hours and other hundreds were closely packed in sents and aisless and yet listened attentively is a greater compliment to packed in sents and aisless and yet listened attentively is a greater compliment to the Hon, and Rev, gentlemen than any report of the words they spoke. At the close of the school every member thereof received a Centennial Gift in the shape of a neat tin pail manufactured at the Cantennial and presented by a friend of the Sunday School in Philadelphia. These little pals were filled with "dots," also manufactured in the Centennial city, and were the gift of Mrs. Theodore Wilson, of Philadelphia. Could these friends have witnessed the joy they created vesterday in the learns of 650 boys and girls, they would have felt more than repaid for the outlay or saerifice made. The gifts being distributed, the scholars, teachers and friends departed to their homes with expressions of the greatest joy and satisfaction.

Mr. Wm. Higgins, of the Auditor's department, has just returned from an Eastern trip.

ALLEGED IRREGULARITIES AT THE CITY LOCKUP.—There is a good deal of talk in police circles of an alleged irregularity at the city lockup, which we are assured will be thoroughly lovesti-gated. It is said that Alex. Wallace, ir., who assists his father, while left alone in haves of the lockup, went into a little who assists his father, while left alone in charge of the lockup, went into a little side speculation which netted him a couple of dollars, but which may cost him a good deal of trouble. The way of it is told in this wise: About 1 o'clock on last Monday morning Alex, 'r., sauntered out of the fortress of which he was temporarily in command, and running against one James Kelly, incontinently dragged him off to durance vile. James was locked up, and early the next morning young Alex, brought him into the court room, and constituting himself Judge, jury and clerk, notified him that he was fixed $2 and costs. This is the story, as teld by Kelly. As the matter is to be investiga-ted, the truth or falsity of the charges will probably be made known shortly.

CLEAN 'EM OUT.—The Second Ward market house has become a favorite lurk-ing place for disreputable characters. Persons passing along at night are liable to be accosted very unpleasantly. During o be accosted very unpleasantly. During he day the building is infested by these oafers, who make obscene comments of persons passing, and cover the whole exement with bucketsful of filthy salive pavement with bucketsful of filthy saliva and tobacco quids. Some days ladies can scarcely pass through without having their dresses ruined by the filth, and themselves stared out of countenance by jail birds. They hate work as badly as they do sonp and water. If they can beg "a chaw," and smuggle into their car-cases an occasional "nip" of whisky, this is precisely what they want in order to enjoy life. Clean 'em out!

He was taken into custody by the officer, and taken to the lockup, but upon giving oursely for his appearance this morning was discharged.

KATIE PUTNAM.—It must not be forgotten that this charming comedienne commences an engagement at the Opera House to-night, when "Sold Cariesity Shop" will be produced. The Pittsburgh Gazette says of her:
As an impersonator of light comedy roles, Miss Kattle Putnam stands unrivaled. "The Marchioness" is not a fancy sketch at all, and in the interpretation of it Miss Putnam is just as sprightly vivacious and odd as such characters that are not rare in actual life. Her "Little Nell" is sweet and pathetic, but not as finished is sweet and pathetic, but not as finished as the "Marchioness," which seems to be ust in her line.
